TAKING A SQUINT INTO THE FUTURE. — Women will be bald-headed!

They will wear rings on their toes and in their noses!

Bells will tinkle on their feet!

So says James Henry Tate, Jr., of Denver, Colo.

Tate professes to have a "gift of tongues" and a "power of healing."

Certainly it is that the gentleman has a gift of tongues, for listen to his further remarks:

War will last one year, one month, one day, one hour.

Churches will fail through ignorance of presence of evil.

America will perish.

Liquor will never be discarded.

Oh, yes, he goes on further, using his wonderful gift of tongues to the extent of two columns, revealing the events of the future—things that are going to happen to us and to our children unto the forty-leventh generation. Lightly and cheerfully he dwells upon everything from women's fashions to world wars.

Such prophets, with easy running, ball bearinged tongues, are not entirely valueless. For one thing, after we hear what they DO say, we usually know what WON'T happen.

SUNDAY CLOTHES.—Thirty big strong, husky men stood on the banks of a pond near Dothan, Ala., and watched a boy drown. Not a "man" made a move to help save that boy from a watery death.

The thirty "men" on shore explained that they had on their Sunday clothes and did not wish to get them soiled; that there wasn't time for them to slip their Sunday clothes off before plunging in.

A wave of indignation has since swept over the little village of Dothan, threatening to drive these Sunday-clothed fellows out of town.

There is nothing to add to this except our sincerest wish that none of the thirty gets as far as Chicago.

SHORT ONES

Lawyers are engaged in a long and scientific debate as to what constitutes Java coffee. We can tell them offhand that most of it consists of 60 per cent Santos, 15 per cent "soaked" berries and the remainder chikory.

A Boston minister declares there are more women than men in heaven. He probably is merely trying to please Bostonians who think heaven is pretty nearly the same as New England.

"Make England neutralize the sea." Also make the military powers neutralize the land. A free land is as important as a free sea, and more.

Another error seems to be that the fellows who wrote a treaty in 1785 did not take into consideration the Lusitania and the submarine.

While naturally peaceable we'd like to see the street car hogs declare war on the automobile speeders with no implements barred.

Advertising men are going to preach in 40 Chicago pulpits. They'll be convincing anyhow.

THE MAN KNOWS

She—A proverb says that fruit is gold in the morning and lead at night, meaning that it's bad for one in the evening, I suppose.

He—That's right! Look at the trouble Adam got into by eating an apple after Eve.—Boston Transcript.
